METHODS OF FIRE PREVENTION GIVEN

COLUMBIA, MISSOURI, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1929

Tom Walden Suggests Burning Salt to Clean Flues

To prevent fire damage in Columbia from amounting to $5.774.08 as it did in Petruary last year, Tom Walden, fire chief, has suggested methods by which fires can be prevented. A great deal of the loss as due to carelessness, Walden as due to carelessness, walden ays.

Burning soot landing on shingle loofs and defective flues caused ten of the sixteen fires during the month. A clean flue does away with this danger. To clean the flue Walden suggests that a half gallon of salt, or less injurnal houses, be placed on a bed of coals in the furnance or in the sixteen. placed on a bed of coals in the fur-nace or in the give.

All drafts should be closed and by the time the safe learns, the pipes will be cleaned. This pressution once a month would aliminate a large number of the usual winter fires, he said.

Four of the sixteen fires were caused by stowes smoking, overheat-ed furnaces and a furnace explosion. A little watching would have prevented this demage.

Lint in the hot air pipe caused one fire. A grass and trash fire caused by carelessness was the sixteenth.

A Man's Magazine This Week

The Missourian Magazine aims always to interest both men and women, but since men seldom have a special department in the newspapers for themselves, and since stories of distinctively feminine interest are appearing on a weekly page in the Missourian, this week we're giving the man of the family a big share and printing a group of feature stories of special interest to him.

The series of articles on how Columbia men made their first money is continued with the experiences of Columbia florists.

Other articles include: Descriptions from an old letter of a trip to Oregon territory in 1851; a consideration of the effect of the proposed thirteen-month calendar on national life; lion farming in California; an account of a night in a hobo "jungle."
